The “Stappenmethode” approach to chess

The Stappenmethode is a way of teaching children and adults chess, and is implemented in hundreds of schools throughout the Netherlands, Belgium, Austria, Germany, France and Switzerland. The method is accessible to all, and offers a systematic approach and easy access to the game.

Starting with the basics to allow for a quick start into the game, names of the pieces and the moves each can make. Further to more complex elements, such as checkmate, controlling the centre, and more...

Some educational values of chess

- ★ developing focus
- ★ strategic thinking
- ★ weighing up options
- ★ working on complex maths and reading skills
- ★ spacial analysis
- ★ foreseeing consequences
- ★ making decisions

Research shows, there is a strong correlation between learning to play chess and academic achievement (Smith and Cage, 2000).
